We believe this policy should be a working document that is fit for purpose, represents the school ethos, enables consistency and quality across the school and is related to the following legislation:

- Equality Act 2010
- Education (School Teachers' Appraisal) (England) Regulations 2012

The following documentation is also related to this policy:

- Equality Act 2010: Advice for Schools (DfE)

We believe that a continuing professional development programme motivates and develops the contribution that teachers, support staff and governors can make to school improvement. This can be done either as individuals, as teams, as a whole school or through professional learning communities.

We recognise the philosophy of the Department for Education that “effective teachers should take ownership and give a high priority to professional development”. We want all school personnel and governors to develop professionally and personally in order to improve standards.

We see ourselves as a learning community where everyone is committed to developing a positive climate for continuous learning. Within this community we wish to give everyone access to high-quality induction training and a progressive continuing professional development programme in order for them to be introduced to new ideas and to further develop skills and competencies.

We will develop an annual continuing professional development programme based on information gained from the school's self-evaluation process, performance management, school inspection, local and national priorities, and results from stakeholder questionnaires.

We believe effective continuing professional development must have a clear focus on improving pupil outcomes. It is essential that we continue to maintain or increase our CPD budget as we understand that pupil outcomes will improve if we use both external and internal expert providers who use only evidence based content and approaches. To assess this we must have in place effective evaluation procedures in order to assess if CPD has impacted on pupil outcomes.

We will endeavour not to produce an over ambitious development plan and therefore to cram too much into our annual continuing professional development programme but to pick and concentrate on a few key priorities and activities for the year. This we feel will give staff time to work together to plan lessons and investigate and problem solve pupil learning issues. We want staff to approach each priority in an enquiring way in order for them to deepen their understanding of the topic or area by working in teams and for them to try out their ideas in their own classrooms.

We understand that teachers and support staff benefit from CPD that allows them to engage with new ideas, experimentation and practice supported by expert advice rather than too much listening to an inset provider.

In order to have in place an effective CPD programme we must look at ways to minimise the workload of teachers and support staff so that they have more effective time to put into place new ideas and activities. We work hard to ensure that within our whole school priorities that the individual development needs of teachers and support are met.

We as a school community have a commitment to promote equality. Therefore, an equality impact assessment will be undertaken annually, and we believe this policy is in line with the Equality Act 2010.

We aim to be judged at least good in all school inspections by ensuring that standards for all pupils are higher than schools of a similar size and that standards continue to improve faster than the national trend. We believe we will achieve this by having in place an effective continuing professional development programme.

We believe it is essential that this policy clearly identifies and outlines the roles and responsibilities of all those involved in the procedures and arrangements that is connected with this policy.
